Locky News Update

The Locky News team understands the importance of our Community paper, especially while there is limited social contact. We also understand the financial impact that COVID19 is having on our local businesses.

We have therefore made the following decisions

- The Locky News will continue to be published every fortnight, in an attempt to keep our Community connected and up beat.
- Annual Advertising invoices WILL NOT be sent out in April for payment by the end of June, they will be deferred until AFTER the COVID19 pandemic is over. I am happy to announce that the charges WILL NOT continue to be accrued in the meantime.
- Advertising price increases WILL NOT be implemented until AFTER the COVID19 pandemic is over.

LOCAL SHOPPING INITIATIVES

Social distancing has caused many of us to reconsider how we do business, our own local business owners are no exception.

For many of our locals, changes have been made in stages and in a very short time frame. Some of our small businesses have opted for pick up and delivery services, whilst others have now chosen to temporarily close their doors. No matter which option our local business owners have chosen, we as consumers must be ready and eager to support them, both now and once this COVID19 interruption is over.

Yes, I refer to COVID19 as an interruption... because although it is inconvenient, it isn't a complete shut-down, it isn't a disaster, and it is temporary and won't last forever.

What is in place to help you...NOW

Online or Phone Orders.

Giddings Co recently (prior to COVID19) added online ordering capabilities for their customers. This meant that they could immediately offer that service for us as we started to socially distance ourselves. Phone orders are also welcome at our local supermarket. Ask Breanna or Ged about payment options, they are sure to have a solution for your shopping experience. These shopping alternatives, and delivery or pick up options, allow for less social contact for both the shopper and the shop staff, a benefit for all concerned. Delivery and pick up also allows for a much less stressful shopping experience for all, since less social contact limits the threat of COVID19.

Meals Direct

An even newer initiative being offered by Giddings Co is a Meals Direct Delivery Service. We all know about "meals on wheels" which is provided by the shire, but there are seniors and others in high risk groups in our community who are not pre-qualified for it, and who could benefit from a similar service. Giddings can offer a once a week meal delivery service, each meal consisting of a cup of soup, main meal and dessert. These meals will be provided at low cost, with very little profit margin. The meals will be generously delivered by the volunteer drivers of the Lockington Bush Nursing Centre's Community Car. If you are one of our senior community members and would like to take up this offer, please refer to page 4 for meals and orders, or call Giddings Co on 5486 2200 and speak to Breanna.

Breanna and Ged are committed to providing our community with a service, even if it is via a slightly different model.

Please throw your support behind Giddings Co, and all of our other great small businesses, both now and post COVID19.

Hello again, Everyone,

I hope that you enjoyed our look at the 1922 version of Lockington in Locky News #887. Prior to that issue, we looked at the story of the construction of the Melbourne to Murray Railway line, up to its completion as far as Sandhurst [Bendigo] in October 1862. Early in 1863, there was pressure for work to begin on the construction of the remaining portion of the line, from Sandhurst to the Murray River. In March, a contract for the first four miles and fifty-seven chains of the line was let to Mr John Bourne, but it did not proceed, and the contract was subsequently let to Mr John Higgins. This first portion, which commenced at the Sandhurst terminus and extended to "the White Hills", was to be the most difficult section of the line. Referring to the remainder, for which the contract of Messrs Collier and Co. had been accepted, it was stated that the "gradients between Sandhurst and the Murray...[were] of the most favourable character, the country being almost a dead level between the two points."

Unfortunately, right from the outset, there were problems between the contractors and the labourers regarding rates of pay. In late May, as stated by the Bendigo Advertiser on Saturday, 30 May 1863, "workmen who agreed to the contractor's terms and went to work were forcibly driven off by others who held out." The Argus, in its Country News of 29 June that year, noted that on 28 June, "a small number of men were put on the works of the Echuca Railway line, at the White Hills." Because of fears that further violence might erupt, "two or three police constables appeared on the works during the day, but nothing occurred to call for any interference." On 21 August 1863, the Bendigo Advertiser reported that Messrs Collier and Co. would shortly be placing "a party of men at the Echuca end of the line, for the purpose of felling and preparing timber for the line," and by 24 October, the Argus could announce that "the construction of the line of railway between Sandhurst and Echuca [had] at length been fairly commenced." Though some further strike action occurred in early November, work resumed on the 16th of that month.

The following is an extract from the Bendigo Advertiser on 27 November 1863: -

"THE RAILWAY. — The progress of the Sandhurst and Echuca line of railway was, yesterday afternoon, marked by an interesting occurrence — the conveyance through Sandhurst, on temporary rails, of a locomotive engine, the "First Victorian"— weighing upwards of sixteen tons. About eight men were engaged in the process, which consisted in laying short lengths of rails, mounted on wooden framing, in front of the engine, pinning them together, levering on the iron monster, and after detaching the rails, again drawing them, with the assistance of a horse, to the front, to play over again the part which they had just before completed. Yesterday night, by eleven o'clock, the iron horse had advanced as far as View Point, just short of the bridge over the storm-water channel. There his huge limbs reposed until six o'clock this morning, under the care of a single keeper, who, wrapped up in his solitary blanket, may have dreamt of the aboriginal who might, blanketless, have reposed on the same spot, more solitary still, a dozen years since. It was stated that the locomotive would proceed along the main road, through the municipal reserve, this morning at six o'clock, and would in the course of two or three days arrive at its destination, beyond the White Hills hamlet, five or six miles from Sandhurst, on the first portion of Messrs. Collier and Barry's contract for the Sandhurst and Echuca line, on which in a few days it would be running...."

On 8 December 1863, the Argus reported that "The railway works in the neighbourhood of the White Hills, Epsom and Huntly (Messrs. Collier and Barry's contract), are rapidly approaching completion." And "The first portion of the line (Mr. Higgins's contract) from the Sandhurst station as far as the Seventh White Hill, is also nearly complete... At the same rate of progress, considering the level character of the country passed through and the consequent facility of the works, the completion of the line to Echuca may be looked for considerably in advance of the contract time."

By 23 December 1863, according to the Bendigo Advertiser, that locomotive engine was running on the Sandhurst and Echuca line, between the White Hills and Epsom. "In the course of a few weeks, trains with contractors' plant and material [would] be able to pass along the main line through Sandhurst, as far as Huntly, a distance of eight miles. The progress of the Echuca line [would] be greatly facilitated thereby." This proved to be so. An article in the Advertiser on 16 January 1864, provided a very detailed description of the workings on Messrs Collier, Barry and Co.'s section of the line. When complete, it would be about fifty-six miles in length and, despite the troubles encountered earlier, work was by then progressing so well that it was expected that the contractors would have no difficulty in bringing it to a successful conclusion "considerably in anticipation of the contract time" at the end of that year.

That will need to happen in a future Locky News. 'Bye until then,

Marg O'Brien

Whilst we are in shut-down mode, members of the Bamawm Church recommend during Easter to watch the following program, downloaded from Google: "The Meaning of Easter/What's in the Bible" by Phil Vischer. This 11.30 minute program directed to children is a family show and may answer questions you may have. May you have a safe and happy Easter.

A TIMELESS POEM

History repeats itself. Came across this poem written in 1869, reprinted during 1919 Pandemic.

This is Timeless....

It was written in 1869 by Kathleen O'Meara:

And people stayed at home
And read books
And listened
And they rested
And did exercises
And made art and played
And learned new ways of being
And stopped and listened
More deeply
Someone meditated, someone prayed
Someone met their shadow
And people began to think differently
And people healed.
And in the absence of people who Lived in ignorant ways
Dangerous, meaningless and heartless,
The earth also began to heal
And when the danger ended and
People found themselves
They grieved for the dead
And made new choices
And dreamed of new visions
And created new ways of living
And completely healed the earth
Just as they were healed.

Just want to give a special shout out to our posties.

Out posties are probably our most important "watch dogs" during this social distancing period.

Our rural posties drive past our homes almost every day, the closest daily contact most of us will have with anyone. They will probably be the first to notice if there is something wrong, maybe our mail hasn't been collected from our letter box, or maybe simply the curtains haven't been opened.

And for town folk who have PO Boxes, please make a habit of clearing them regularly, so that if there is a build up of mail, our post office staff are aware that there could be a problem, and will get someone to check on you.

See my point now? Our posties are NOT JUST delivering our mail.

Thank you!

Need medication but don't want to go out? Not a problem for Rochester Chemmart Pharmacy!

For those in our community who are most at risk, we strongly encourage the use of our FREE home delivery service and are happy to deliver your scripts to Lockington, through the Lockington & District Bush Nursing Centre Inc.

The Lockington Lions club will cease all activities immediately due to the virus threat to our community. We are postponing all meetings until further notice! Lockington Lions club executive and its members wish all the community members all the best over this troubling time and stay healthy and look after each other!

The next round of youth of the year public speaking was to held in Echuca, Sunday 22nd March, due to the current virus, this event was cancelled. Emily Mitchell was amongst one of these contestants and I would like to thank her for getting to the next round.

The Lockington and District Living Heritage Complex committee know our community fully understands, and to all who had intentions of helping with the running of the event we thank you.

For TRAFFIC is gone, LONG QUEUES are gone.
PETROL is affordable, BILLS extended.
KIDS are at home with their FAMILIES,
PARENTS are home taking care of their CHILDREN.
FAST FOOD replaced by HOME COOKED MEALS
Hectic SCHEDULES replaced by NAPS.
The AIR seems CLEANER, the WORLD QUIETER.
PEOPLE are conscious about HYGIENE and HEALTH again.
MONEY doesn't seem to make the WORLD GO ROUND anymore.
And WE now have TIME, finally, to STOP and SMELL the ROSES.
It seems like this COVID-19 is a RESET BUTTON for HUMANITY!!!

in all honesty, I really hope we all come out of this a better version of ourselves

Coronavirus (COVID-19) update

Farmers and producers are vital to all Victorian communities and play an important role during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

The agricultural supply chain is essential to maintaining the flow of food to our supermarkets and kitchen tables.

We are working closely with industry to ensure that the essential services provided by the agriculture sector continue to operate as we move to Stage 3 measures to combat the spread of coronavirus (COVID-19).

The situation continues to change rapidly and we urge you to regularly check the Department of Health and Human Services website for the latest update: coronavirus.vic.gov.au.

The Victorian Chief Veterinary Officer has also developed a factsheet with advice for animal owners during the pandemic. More information is available on the website at <http://agriculture.vic.gov.au/agriculture/emergencies/coronavirus>

Contacting us...

We're continuing to serve the community but you may need to contact us in different ways.

If you can do something online then this is the best way. You can also call us 136 186 for a range of information including how best to contact us.

Agriculture Victoria office receptions across the state are now closed in order to reduce face-to-face contact between staff and members of the community. The decision is in response to the latest advice to help prevent the further spread of coronavirus (COVID-19).

Please consider whether the activity you are contacting us about is necessary at this time. Visit the Department of Health and Human Services website for the latest coronavirus (COVID-19) advice.

Keeping our community safe during coronavirus (COVID-19) restrictions

Farms and agribusinesses are continuing to keep Victorian supermarkets stocked and food on tables through the challenges of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

Chief Executive Dr Emily Phillips said Agriculture Victoria was working hard to support farmers and the Victorian community through this difficult time.

"Farmers, particularly those impacted by bushfires, drought and dry seasonal conditions and other challenges, should be reassured that support and services will continue to be delivered," Dr Phillips said.

"We have been working hard to deliver and, where needed, redesign our services to ensure the safety of farmers and the people who live and work in our rural and regional communities.

"Your safety is our number one priority at this time.

"Many of our workshops and events will now be delivered by phone or via a digital platform, including our seasonal climate outlooks, the autumn livestock webinar series starting in May, and our financial literacy program which will be available soon.

"We will continue to provide our usual compliance and biosecurity services but with modifications to ensure your safety, and the safety of our staff."

In recent weeks the fox and wild dog bounty collection centres have been operating with changes to enable physical distancing which included establishing drop off and exclusion zones.

The bounty program will continue; however collection events will be suspended from 30 March 2020.

Hunters are strongly encouraged to continue to collect fox scalps and wild dog skins within their properties during the suspension of collection events.

These pieces can be frozen or dried and submitted for reward when the fox and wild dog bounty collection schedule resumes, in line with bounty terms and conditions.

Arrangements have been made with a private company to enable us to continue to provide pig vaccine manufacturing and diagnostic services when the Pig Services Centre suspends its services from Friday 27 March.

The Responsible Pet Ownership (RPO) program has rescheduled all visits while schools are closed. Animal Welfare Victoria will continue to work closely with schools and preschools to resume the program once schools re-open and the restrictions on non-essential travel and physical distancing allow.

Animal Welfare Victoria is also exploring options to deliver the key dog safety messages live via online learning to maintain the interactive components of the program.

For information about changes to planned workshops and events follow Agriculture Victoria on Facebook or Twitter or visit agriculture.vic.gov.au. For the latest information on coronavirus (COVID-19) visit coronavirus.vic.gov.au.

Giving jobseekers a fresh start in agriculture

The Victorian Government is giving workers who have lost their jobs a fresh start in agriculture and ensuring primary producers have the workers they need to keep producing at high levels during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

Minister for Agriculture and Regional Development Jaclyn Symes launched the $50 million Agriculture Workforce Plan yesterday, which will provide practical support for critical food industries, helping the sector and regional communities.

The plan will match workers who have lost their jobs with employers in the agriculture sector, helping agribusinesses and primary producers to meet their labour and operational needs during this difficult period.

It's part of the Government's $500 million Working for Victoria Fund, established to help workers who have lost their jobs find new opportunities.

Agriculture Victoria and Regional Development Victoria are working together to match displaced workers to vital industries such as horticulture, dairy, meat and food production and manufacturing, as well as transport and logistics services.

The initiative will also help pay for training to ensure redeployed workers have swift access to any necessary upskilling.

It will aim to match workers to roles within their regions and towns, while looking across Victoria to fill unmet demand in food supply chains.

Workers will be given support to relocate if needed, which will provide flow-on benefits for the accommodation sector, which in some areas has been hit by the double impact of the coronavirus pandemic and bushfires. This will be done with the highest health and hygiene protections, and social distancing controls.

Employers and workers in the agriculture and food production sectors will also benefit from payroll tax refunds and deferrals contained in the Government's $1.7 billion Economic Survival Package.

Other measures have been put in place to ensure business continuity, including lifting truck curfews to speed up restocking efforts and supporting important food processing facilities to continue safe production.

Individuals, farmers and businesses who wish to register for the Agriculture Workforce Plan can do so at vic.gov.au/workingforvictoria.

AGRICULTURE VICTORIA

The Fast Break - March 2020

Some early autumn rain caused a flurry of excitement in March, but it has gone quiet of late. There were some increases in stored soil moisture, but once again it was patchy and confined to north of the Divide.

Oceans to the north of Australia are still capable of providing more moisture. Most models predict these warmer waters to hang around for some time.

In the Central Pacific, things are primed with generally more cool water than warm, from which four models are getting sniffs of a possible La Nina. The Trade Winds are also blowing a bit stronger which would need to happen for a La Nina to form later this year. Cloud patterns have come back from being El Nino like, to normal and pressure patterns are also normal. History tells us anything could happen in the Central Pacific from now on.

The Indian Ocean is just warm all over, with no phenomena apparent. Three models predict a negative IOD could pop up in late winter, but it's very early for them to be making predictions about that, given IOD predictability isn't very good this far out. Their signals are probably coming from a patch of undersea warmer water off Indonesia – so we'll be watching that over the coming months.

Rainfall trigger mechanisms have shown drier tendencies. The SAM has been weakly positive and while it's erratic in autumn, a neutral or negative SAM would fill you with more frontal confidence.

Pressure patterns are now in a summer pattern, not ideal for autumn and are forcing fronts and lows further south, where pressure has been higher, leading to stable weather over Victoria for much of the month.

Interestingly, there are some sniffs of 'wetter' from a number of models, but they are quite divergent as to what area of Victoria might get it. Tantalisingly, these suggestions of 'wetter' continue into the four to six-month outlook period, but at this time of the year it's just eye candy.

For the near term, on balance most models are sitting on the neutral fence for the next three months, with drier, average and wetter and warmer, average and cooler all just as likely – code for plan for anything – but at least there is moisture about if the right event drops by.

Seasonal climate update webinar

Do you want to hear the latest science, insights and innovations happening in the climate and agriculture space? Then, why not log in to the 2020 Climate Webinar series.

Taking part in these webinars are climate specialists from Agriculture Victoria, BoM, CSIRO and other agencies. The series will run during morning smoko or lunchtime, or listen to recordings at a time that suits.

The next webinar will focus on seasonal climate outlooks for Victoria, South Australia, Tasmania and Southern New South Wales.

Date: 10am and 12pm, Wednesday 15 or Friday 17 April

Presenter: Dale Grey, Seasonal Risk Agronomist, Agriculture Victoria

During this 45-minute webinar Dale will explain in detail what the climate drivers and indicators are up to and predictions for winter and spring.

More information is on the Agriculture Victoria website or email heather.field@agriculture.vic.gov.au.

Suitable season for Barber's pole worm

Barber's pole worm (Haemonchus contortus) is the most important parasite that needs to be controlled in sheep within summer rainfall areas of Australia.

Therefore, it would not be surprising if we see outbreaks of disease due to Barber's pole worm with the warm, moist conditions we have recently experienced.

Adult Barber's pole worms live in the fourth stomach of sheep. The mature female worms are visible to the naked eye.

The gut of the worm is red, as it is full of blood. Wound around the gut is the white ovary, packed with hundreds of eggs. This red and white spiral effect gives the worm its name as it looks like the classic Barber's pole.

The adult female worms are prolific egg producers leading rapidly to a heavy pasture contamination.

During warm, moist conditions these eggs hatch into larvae and are eaten by sheep while grazing.

Given their prolific production, worm populations can build up rapidly.

Like other internal parasites, Barber's pole worms mainly affect weaners and lactating ewes.

Barber's pole worms feed by sucking blood leading to anaemia and 'bottle jaw', but not necessarily weight loss or diarrhoea.

Just 1000 adult Barber's pole worms can remove 50 ml of blood from a sheep per day.

Consequently, Barber's pole worm outbreaks can lead to high mortalities in a short space of time.

Barber's pole worms can be detected at post-mortem, or in live animals by a faecal egg count.

As with other internal parasites, producers need to be aware that drench resistance to Barber's pole worm is becoming increasingly common.

For further information please contact your local veterinarian or Agriculture Victoria veterinary or animal health officer, or in NSW your Local Land Services.

Rochester and Elmore District Health Service

Media Release

27 March 2020

A message from REDHS:

We are working hard for our community

As at today, we do NOT have any cases of COVID-19 in REDHS and we want to keep it that way.

Rochester and Elmore District Health (REDHS) would like to reassure the community we are keeping pace, and at times are a step ahead, of the rapidly changing COVID-19 situation. The people of Rochester, Elmore and surrounds can trust us to keep them and their loved ones as safe as possible during this crisis.

“REDHS is responding to the changing environment in a swift and decisive manner and continues to strive to be ahead of the game”.

Everyone is affected by this emergency and we are all doing our bit, at home and at work (even when work might be conducted from home). Our staff are working tirelessly, and have risen to the challenges with energy and optimism.

“We sincerely appreciate the support from patients, residents and their families and friends also, as we have steadily tightened the restrictions on visiting.”

From 27 March we initiated a precautionary lockdown of all REDHS facilities to ensure the safety of every patient and resident. There will be no visitor access to REDHS Hospital or Aged Care facilities for the foreseeable future.

Our Urgent Care Centre is still open 24/7, however if people have a fever and cold/flu symptoms they can call the COVID Hotline (1800 675 398) or complete the interactive self-assessment on the Department of Health website to understand the risks and precautions based on personal circumstances. The Coronavirus (COVID-19) interactive self-assessment is available at: <https://www.dhhs.vic.gov.au/coronavirus-selfassessment>.

We are screening everyone who is required to enter the premises, including all staff and contractors coming on site to conduct essential work, such as fire safety works. All nonessential programs and work has been postponed, with many of our primary care and community support programs converted to home support and/or a phone check in as much as possible.

We obviously do not want the visitor restrictions to compromise the wellbeing of our residents in aged care. We have deployed staff to our Lifestyle/Activities team and they are working very hard to ensure every resident is included in small group activities or has individual activities scheduled for them every day. We also encourage “virtual visits” – asking families to touch base via phone, Facebook, email or Skype, etc. We have even set up a roster for office staff such as the Executive to take individual residents for a walk outside to enjoy the fresh air and beautiful gardens – obviously while practising social distancing.

“Protecting our patients and residents is a shared responsibility and we will get through this if we stick to the plan, do as we’re directed and keep the end in sight. Right now, it might be a distant end – but it will become clearer as we work together.”

LOCKINGTON BOWLS CLUB REPORT

March 30

With the continued restraints caused by the Coronavirus - COVID-19, all activity on the bowling green is grounded. The club championship games remaining are to be put on hold until such time it is safe to resume. This condition will possibly delay the club's Presentation evening that was scheduled for Friday 1st May 2020. Members will be notified. The club wish to thank Kevin Humbert and Les Brereton along with several members for the special effort in completing the refurbishment of the No. 2 green. Hopefully the green will be able to assist the club in running a full field (19 rinks) for future tournaments.

The club would like to acknowledge the continued support from our generous sponsors - Bendigo Bank (Lockington), Echuca Toyota Sales, Clive Coventry Funerals (Kyabram), KenOliver - Ray White (Rochester); M & S Accounting (Bendigo), Auto Bahn (Echuca), Caledonian Hotel (Echuca), Golconda Wealth Specialists, Nichol Trading (Rochester) plus our local traders - Giddings Co., Curleos' Ice Cream & Waffle, Helens Takeaway, Lockington Hotel and the Business Centre. All this support allows our small club to survive.

Some of our older bowling members will remember Stan Brain (Castlemaine) who passed away last week at 93 years. Brain was a great supporter at our club tournaments and people will recall the famed Triples team of John Lorenz, Brain and the late Peter Kerr (s) who won several tournaments and Group Triples events.

For now the club will be adhering to the COVID-19 Rules and hope to return to the greens in due course.

Take care of everyone and stay healthy.

Season 2020 Club News Staying united on and off the field

As we would all be gearing up for Round 1 to kick off this weekend, we now sit back and wonder what season 2020 will look like...

I'm sure you will all be aware the season has been postponed until further notice due to the risk of the COVID -19 Virus. It was recommended that all clubs postpone matches until may 31st with it continuing to be revised.

The decision by the league was not an easy one however it was necessary as without question the health and well-being of our playing group, our members and supporters, our sponsors and the wider community is paramount. We are now faced with the unknown and require your continued support so we can remain successful in this very challenging time.

The committee is engaged in making sure we keep up with the many financial commitments so that we will be ready for kick off, whenever that may be. We are also very mindful of how challenging it is to be able to uphold your commitment that keeps our club running successfully but we ask you hang in there.

We understand many of our sponsors are also currently experiencing hardship and we ask as a community we rally behind them just as they so generously do for us.

We will continue to keep you all informed when we are given any more information on our future. The day will come when we will return to life as we knew it before this crazy time but until then, stay positive, look after yourselves and those around you. Hopefully, football and netball will return for season 2020.

We would like to say a huge thank you to some of our major sponsors. Without these guys we wouldn't be able to run a successful club. Where possible, please show your support, especially during these challenging times.

Season Launch

On a more positive note, a huge thank you needs to go out to Olly & Beck for organising our 'Season Launch'.

Before the ban on large gatherings, about 80 LBU players, partners & supporters attended our season launch at the Echuca Cup. It was a very successful day entertained by live music and of course horse racing. The beautiful weather and lovely grazing platters made for a fantastic outing which then lead into everyone heading back to Henry's Bridge Hotel for a few refreshments.

Let's hope when we are able to hit it out on the field and court we will have more luck than some had on the betting.
